Within the last several years design has become my life. As technology continues to grow, I notice myself more intrigued by innovation, the experience of the user, and beautiful clean design that ties it all together. The drive to be a part of this brought me back to college furthering my skills as a media professional and developing the thinking skills necessary to be a competitive team player.

In the first few years of my career, I have learned the value I can bring to the table. These ideals continue to lead my work, hard and soft skills and perfectionism in everything I do. I am looking forward to working with companies that believe in forward-thinking and innovative mindsets to drive customer experience and product development.
