Overview

Guided by my industrious father, a new office supply store started in 1984. We had a nice selection, delivered orders, and offered credit. It was efficient and enjoyable.

I found that I enjoyed working with people. Learning about the products was easy and soon I was doing sales. Customers enjoyed our honesty and continued a relationship with us for many years.

But the industry changed with larger stores and we couldn't compete any longer.

I am now looking for a different industry. If you need a hard worker that is up for the challenge please give me a try.
